Sartre, "The Wall" They pushed us into a big white room and I began to blink because the light hurt my eyes. Then I saw a table and four men behind the table, civilians, looking over the papers. They had bunched another group of prisoners in the back and we had to cross the whole room to join them.

Sartre, "The Wall"

Sartre's only collection of short fiction was written just before WW2 and reflects an important time in his writing oeuvre. These pieces are bitingly viscous as only Sartre could be. 'The Wall' is a poignant, at times harsh treatment of men condemned to be executed the following morning during the Spanish Civil War.
